

California Climate Credit Bill Relief from the Cap-and-Invest Program

A Message from the California Public Utilities Commission

This April* your SDG&E® gas bill will include a $32.58 natural gas credit called the “California Climate Credit.” Millions of households across California receive a similar credit this year. You don’t need to do anything – your credit will appear automatically on your bill.

The California Climate Credit comes from the State’s Cap-and-Invest Program, which requires polluters to pay for the pollution they produce. The revenue is returned to customers like you to support California’s transition to a cleaner, more sustainable future.

In previous years, residential electric customers received an electric Climate Credit on their April bill. This year, the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) is targeting the distribution of the residential electric Climate Credits to the highest bill months, as part of a statewide mandate focused on supporting affordability for customers. All residential customers will still receive the electric Climate Credit later in 2026. For more information, please visit sdge.com/ClimateCredit.

Since 2014, households served by SDG&E have received $1,322 in California Climate Credits from the Cap-and-Invest Program. Statewide, the program has provided more than $15 billion in cumulative benefits to electric and gas customers.

Billing periods vary by utility and may not always coincide with a calendar month. If you don't see a Climate Credit in the bill that arrives this month, it will appear in the bill you receive next month.*

The CPUC regulates privately owned electric and natural gas companies and serves the public interest by protecting consumers and ensuring the provision of safe, reliable utility service and infrastructure at reasonable rates, with a commitment to environmental enhancement and a healthy California economy.
