IT PAYS TO DRIVE CLEAN

What: California wants to fight climate change and get more people to drive cars that run on clean fuels. If you drive an all-electric or plug-in hybrid electric vehicle*, you may be eligible to receive an Electric Vehicle Climate Credit (EVCC).

Amount: Last year, a $500 SDG&E® bill credit was given to drivers who applied.

When: Enrollment runs through May 31, 2019. To receive the credit, your vehicle must be registered in California and within SDG&E's service area.

Where to apply: Review the qualifications and apply for the credit at sdge.com/EVCC.

Are you on the best pricing plan?

Take advantage of electric vehicle Time-of-Use pricing as low as 9 cents per kWh when you charge your car between 12:00 a.m. and 6 a.m. Visit sdge.com/EVrates to learn more.

*The credit is only for electric vehicles registered at a residence AND that can be driven on a highway. Electric commercial fleet vehicles, golf carts and scooters are not eligible.

The Electric Vehicle Climate Credit amount varies based on the number of applicants in a given year. SDG&E® makes no guarantees regarding the amount of this year's credit. 2019 is the final year this credit will be available.
